Michael Jingoian wins Iowa Straw Poll

(Portland, OR) "Jingoian fever" is on the rise. Michael Jingoian won the Iowa Libertarian Straw Poll on March 15, 2008.

Jingoian's message is catching the eyes of the delegates. One of Iowa's longest termed and well respected delegates gave an impassioned speech on Jingoian's behalf, specifically referencing his business background and skills which are necessary qualities in a candidate and a future leader.

The Iowa vote was significant because it evaluated the candidates based on their ability to get their message out via alternative media outlets, such as their website, videos, written materials and surrogate speakers.

It is the general feeling among many Libertarian Party members that given the current economic climate, many who would normally visit candidates in person, will opt to learn about their candidates through alternative means. Voters in Iowa believed that the candidate who did the best job at representing them and the candidate that would do the best job at representing the party as its presidential nominee was Michael Jingoian. One delegate commented, "His message was clear and concise. He came across as presidential and the voters clearly resonated with him."

Jingoian has already appeared on the front-page covers of the St. John's Sentinel and the Portland Business Journal, which dubbed Jingoian "Don Quixote with an entrepreneurial streak." Jingoian is fast becoming the candidate to watch as we approach the Libertarian National Convention in Denver, Colorado during Memorial Day weekend. Some political insiders say that this movement has the potential to catapult all 3rd parties, including the Greens, Working Families, Reform and the Libertarians onto the public stage.

In 2002, Michael Jingoian founded RESET America. As Jingoian states, "RESET America is a plan to save our freedoms and liberties before valid solutions that are possible today are lost forever." RESET America is dedicated to replacing the stranglehold the Democrats and Republicans have on our political system by supporting Independent and 3rd party candidates for public office.

Jingoian is the founder and CEO of AngelVision Technologies, Inc. AngelVision is recognized as one of the nation's best run companies and has received over 35 regional and national awards for innovation and management since 2006. AngelVision was voted "One of the 15 Best Small Companies to work for in Oregon." Recently, AngelVision was ranked the 120th fastest growing company in the United States by Inc. Magazine. Jingoian was featured in the September 2007 article titled, "An Inc. 500 President?" drawing attention to his campaign that is "capable of uniting third party voters."
